WIRELINE COMPETITION BUREAU REVISES A-CAM STUDY AREA MAP

WC Docket No. 10-90

On April 10, 2015, the Wireline Competition Bureau (Bureau) published an online, publicly-accessible map of rate-of-return study areas that will be incorporated into the next version of the Alternative Connect America Cost Model (A-CAM).¹ Today, the Bureau publishes a revised map. In our process of refining the A-CAM, we have updated the data used to identify a small number of potential central office (Node0) locations, improving the default locations if carriers do not propose any corrections.²

The revised map is consistent with the methodology described in the A-CAM Service Area Documentation.³ The revised map replaces Node0 locations in 98 service areas: the prior map used the most central Geographic Names Information System (GNIS) populated place in the service area for those 98 service areas, while the revised map uses the place that is closest to the central office location previously used in the Commission's prior forward-looking model, which in turn was based on commercial data regarding actual central office locations.⁴ A list of these service areas is attached to this public notice. In addition, the previous map indicated that nineteen service areas had both a GeoResults Node0 location, shown in cross-hatch, and a white dot showing another Node0 location. Because we use the GeoResults locations where available, the revised map shows only cross-hatch for these service areas.

The Bureau previously requested any corrections to the service areas and Node0 locations shown on the map by May 11, 2015. To the extent rate-of-return carriers have any proposed corrections to the Node0 locations newly revised in this Public Notice, those adjustments should be submitted through the A-CAM Support desk (cacmsupport@costquest.com) by May 15, 2015. For additional information on this proceeding, contact Katie King (Katie.King@fcc.gov) of the Wireline Competition Bureau, Telecommunications Access Policy Division, (202) 418-7400.
