FCC TO HOST FIRST MEETING OF INDUSTRY-LED ROBOCALL STRIKE FORCE

Washington, D.C. – On August 19, 2016, the Federal Communications Commission will host the first meeting of the Robocall Strike Force, an industry-led group that is committed to developing comprehensive solutions to prevent, detect, and filter unwanted robocalls. Robocalls and telemarketing calls are the number one source of consumer complaints received by the FCC. Following a call to action by FCC Chairman Tom Wheeler (<http://go.usa.gov/xrTfm>), industry leaders moved to form the Strike Force to expeditiously address consumer concerns with robocalls and deploy anti-robocall solutions.

With this Public Notice, the Commission announces that the first portion of this meeting will be open to the public. We anticipate remarks from Chairman Wheeler, Commissioner Mignon Clyburn, and AT&T CEO Randall Stephenson, who will Chair the Strike Force.

Below are additional details on the meeting:

- When – Public Session: Friday, August 19, 2016, beginning promptly at 10:00am EST and concluding at approximately 10:30am EST.
