Re: KSBW(TV)
Salinas, CA
Facility ID No. 19653
FRN: 0001587583

Dear Licensee:

This letter is in reference to the license renewal application for KSBW(TV), Salinas, California (the "Station"),¹ which is licensed to Hearst Stations, Inc. (the "Licensee"). We hereby admonish the Station for its failure to comply with the limits on commercial matter in children's programming.

In the Children's Television Act of 1990 ("CTA"), Pub. L. No. 101-437, 104 Stat. 996-1000, codified at 47 U.S.C. Sections 303a, 303b and 394, Congress directed the Commission to adopt rules, inter alia, limiting the amount of commercial matter that commercial television stations may air during children's programming, and to consider in its review of television license renewals the extent to which the licensee has complied with such commercial limits. Pursuant to this statutory mandate, the Commission adopted Section 73.670 of the Rules, 47 C.F.R. § 73.670, which limits the amount of commercial matter which may be aired during children's programming to 10.5 minutes per hour on weekends and 12 minutes per hour on weekdays.² These commercial limitations became effective on January 1, 1992.³

In furtherance of the CTA's underlying purpose to protect children from excessive and inappropriate commercial messages, the Commission adopted the website address rules.⁴ The website address rules restrict the display of Internet web addresses during children’s programming directed at children ages 12 and under.⁵ Specifically, Section 73.670(b) permits the display of Internet website addresses during program material or promotional material not counted as commercial time only if it meets the following four prong test: (1) the website offers a substantial amount of bona fide program-related or other noncommercial content; (2) the website is not primarily intended for commercial purposes, including either e-commerce or advertising; (3) the website’s home page and other menu pages are clearly labeled to distinguish the noncommercial from the commercial sections; and (4) the page of the website to which viewers are directed by the website address is not used for e-commerce, advertising, or other commercial purposes (e.g., contains no links labeled “store” and no links to another page with commercial material).⁶

On July 31, 2014, the Licensee filed the above-referenced license renewal application for the Station. In response to Section IV, Question 5 of that application, the Licensee attached an exhibit which admitted that on October 12, 2013, the Station aired the URL address for the website “www.lazytown.com,” which appeared during the closing credits of the NBC Network supplied children’s program “LazyTown.” The program was supplied to the Station, through the NBC Network, by Sprout as part of the NBC Kids Saturday Morning E/I Block. The inclusion of the website address is described by NBC Network communication sent to the Station as being “inadvertently included” and “fleeting.” NBC Networks goes on to describe the precautions it takes to avoid such an incident and notes that NBC Network is “working with Sprout to develop and implement additional procedures to minimize the possibility of a re-occurrence of this isolated incident.”⁷ The Licensee requests that, if the Commission finds the display of the website address to be other than a de minimis violation of Section 73.760, the violation should be treated in a similar manner to recent “host-selling” violations, which resulted in the sanction of an admonishment.⁸

Even though the website address was displayed for only a short duration (estimated at less than one-half of one second) and was confined to a small portion of the screen (less than two percent of the picture height), the display of a website address during program material that does not comply with the four-prong test is still a violation of Section 73.670(b). No evidence has been provided demonstrating that the website complies with the four-prong test set forth in Section 73.670(b) and upon prior examination of the website we concluded it does not comply. In particular, the website does not meet the fourth prong of the test because, as recently as July 2, 2014, the top of the homepage of the website contained content of a commercial nature in the form of a link labeled “shop.”⁹ Furthermore, while the website address was only displayed during the closing credits, the Commission has specifically stated that closing credits are considered to be part of the television programming material and are subject to the website address rule.¹⁰

We note that while the commercial matter may have been inserted into the program by the Station's television network or program supplier (e.g., NBC Network or Sprout), this does not relieve the Station of responsibility for the violations. In this regard, the Commission has consistently held that reliance on a program's source or producer for compliance with our children's television rules and policies will not excuse or mitigate violations which do occur.¹¹ Although corrective actions have been taken to prevent future violations, this does not relieve the Station from liability for violations that have already occurred.¹²

We consider any violation of our rules limiting the amount of commercial matter in children's programming to be significant, however, the violation described in your license renewal application appears to have been an isolated occurrence. While we do not rule out more severe sanctions for a similar violation of this nature in the future, we have determined that an admonition is appropriate at this time. Therefore, based upon the facts and circumstances before us, we ADMONISH the Station for its violation of Section 73.670(b) of the Commission's rules. We remind the Licensee that the Commission expects all commercial television licensees to comply with the limits on commercial matter, including the display of website addresses, during children's programming.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that, a copy of this Letter shall be sent by First Class and Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested to the licensee at the address listed above.

Sincerely,

Barbara A. Kreisman
