

In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has created a Web site <http://www.fcc.gov/cgb/hurricanes/> to provide crucial emergency information for consumers, communications industries, and state and local governments in the areas affected by the hurricane. Information is broken down by consumers, industry, and federal, state, tribal and local Government resources.