History of GW Micro

GW MICRO
The Voice of Vision

GW Micro was founded by Doug Geoffray and Dan Weirich in 1990. Vocal-Eyes was our popular screen reader for DOS. Window-Eyes was introduced when Microsoft released Windows in the early 90's.

GW Micro has been developing screen reading solutions for more than 22 years!

Free Window-Eyes Offer

The screenshot shows the 'Window-Eyes Offer for Users of Microsoft Office' page. The header includes the Window-Eyes logo and navigation links for 'FAQ', 'Voices', and 'Support'. The main content area features a 'Download Window-Eyes' button with a language selection dropdown and a 'Download Now' button. Below this is a section for 'Key Features' listing supported operating systems (Windows 8.1, 8, 7, Vista, XP), supported Windows Servers (2012, 2008 R2, 2008, 2003), and compatibility with Microsoft Office 2010 and 2013. A Microsoft Office logo is also present with a link to the Microsoft Accessibility Website.

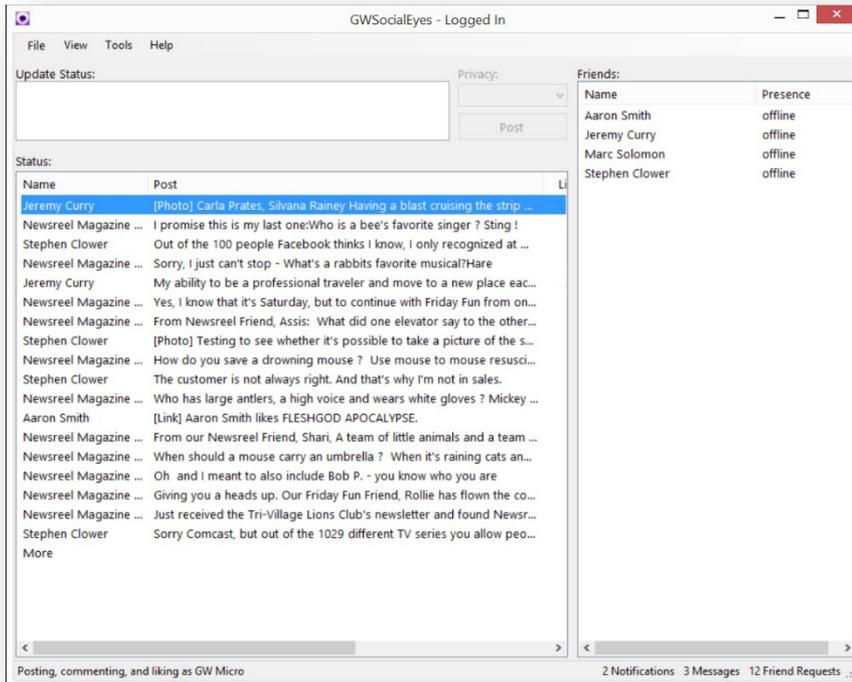

- Partnership and agreement with Microsoft commenced on January 14
- Microsoft Office 2010 or newer required
- Download the free version of Window-Eyes from:
www.WindowEyesForOffice.com
- Full featured screen reader with same application support as retail version

What is GWSocialEyes?

- Stand alone Facebook client for Windows that allows you to complete the most popular tasks:
 - Post status updates, review your timeline, post comments, like posts, chat, respond to friend requests, find friends, groups and pages
 - Subset of all features available on facebook.com
- Fully keyboard accessible, keyboard shortcuts for common tasks, screen reader friendly
- Simple and uncluttered user interface with intuitive navigation and conventional menu system
- Low cost - $39 for 1 year subscription

Why GWSocialEyes?

- Not everyone has a smart phone (35% of US adults in 2013 according to Pew Research)
- Not everyone is comfortable using touch interface
- www.facebook.com can be challenging to use for some computer users
- Poll of customers reflected interest and demand for easy to use Facebook client for Windows
- Business case - new potential reoccurring revenue stream that is screen reader agnostic
