

I find the proposed merger of AOL and Time-Warner not at all in the best interests of consumers. AOL and Time-Warner have individually stifled competition in their respective industries by absorbing them. A larger company with greater control over traditional and new media is not the answer the American People should allow these corporate usurers.