

I believe in Free Speech and ironically; Censorship. Both in moderation. The control that companies such as AOL and Time Warner have is seemingly god-like. To judge what a person does online could be looked upon as an invasion of privacy. We pay for an online service to give us access, not the online service access to us. There should be regulations on those that regulate.
'Who censors th censors?'