

Computers are rapidly emerging as general-purpose communications tools. I use my computer as my sole telephone, tv, radio, fax, email, and newspaper provider. This de facto concentration that is occurring makes a potential monopoly of the communication channel extraordinarily dangerous. US citizens have absolutely NO Constitutional protection of free speech over such a private line, and MUST therefore rely on competing providers of internet services. The merger is therefore a grave threat to our freedom and national security.