

I would like to know which Commissioners at the FCC think that approving the merger of A.T.&T. Broadband and ComCast is going to somehow, someday lead to a competitive marketplace and all things good and great. I want their names, contact information, and links to any URL's which explain to poor unenlightened little old me how approving one's company's control of more than 35% of the entire country's cable services is good for rates, competition, local responsiveness, customer service, or anything else worth protecting. That is your job, after all. So fill me in, please.
