

I think the merger would be bad for everyone involved. As a consumer we will have a lack of choices which will result in higher prices and lack of motivation for product development. This will also put many DirectTV dealers out in the cold.