

I am presently a cable-tv customer. I also use cable for Internet connection. I see the cable companies doing nothing to be competitive. I've noticed that even in their own ads, they comment on how the satellite television companies can't compete with them. As long as EchoStar charges the same rates no matter where in the country the customer is located, I can't see any disadvantage for customers in rural areas. Please give us a better choice for tv/internet/communications, by allowing this merger to happen.
Thank you
