

To Whom It May Concern:

I am a recent and current subscriber to Dish Network satellite TV service. I am generally satisfied with this service and I am intrigued and curious about the proposed merger and the potential results of such a merger. It is my understanding that Dish Network has no interest in supporting Mac users with high-speed internet services if a merger occurs. I must voice extreme disapproval of such a stance. As a Mac user, and one who is frustrated by the lack of access to high-speed internet services and their exorbitant costs, I sincerely hope that Dish Network reconsiders and will offer support for Macs. Though a small market, Macs are still prominent in many areas and fields of interest. Any time a legitimate market is ignored is bad for consumers. Please support Macs in your future considerations! The supposed goal of this merger is to provide greater service for ALL potential customers in America. This must include Mac users. Thank you, and good day.
