

I'm not sure my message went through, so I will write this again! I am totally opposed to the merger, as I've been through a merger when DirectTv bought out my previous satellite company. I had to reinvest in new equipment that was compatible with DirectTv's satellites. The only thing that DirectTv gave me was the new dish. I spent approximately $200 to get the new equipment, and I'm concerned that this will happen again. I also oppose the merger, as they would have a monopoly, and could charge whatever they want for monthly fees. I'm in favor of competition, as it keeps prices down.
