

I am generally in support of the Dish/Directv merger. But, only so long as programming prices don't take a jump and that no matter which hardware platform they decide on, current users won't have to foot the bill for new hardware.