

I am a current satellite TV subscriber who would like to support the pending merger of EchoStar and DIRECTV.

I would like to see the merger just to get local channels. However this should not include extra fees. It should be part of the basic channel packages just as it is with cable tv.

Currently I use Dish network for TV and ATT cable internet. I wish I could get all the things I want from a provider but since cable continues to raise rates monthly for programming, and satellite internet is too slow and costly I made these choices.

The current satellite internet service is high priced and not very fast. That part of the service needs a lot of work.

Thank You