

I fully support this merger. As a former cable customer who had nothing but bad service, limited choices and constant rate hikes, I can tell you from personal experience that once mini dishes were available cable companies were starting to care about their customers a little, but don't forget that because dish can't provide local channels in all markets this still gives a unfair advantage to cable.