

I don't believe this is sending a good signal to the common share holders of this company or any other . This needs to be stopped now they have more assets than they owe why should we be fleeced out of our money .If this is allowed then every company will do this . And America will no longer invest in itself .How can this be allowed by law ? And where will it stop im no longer investing since it seems to me my money can just be taking . Enron is just the beginning it seems to me xo is hiding behind them . There has been in my opinion a miss direction in leading me to believe they had enough funding untill 2003 . I think the common shareholders should have a right not to accept this and have a say . If it wasn't for us then this company probably would not of had the funding to get this far .Who would fund them if we didn't buy the stock . F&I seems to be doing a little insider activity they have mclld ,xoxo conflict of interest maybe a plan from the begining .
