

The XOXO Communications fiasco is further evidence that high ranking individuals within a corporation are above the law and small investors are at their mercy. The system simply must be changed to protect individual investors. Like ENRON, this is another example of how a few wealthy and greedy bastards seek to protect their own interests at the expense of all.