

I find it hard to believe that a company can just throw out all the shareholders that were invested in good faith and get government backing to do it.