

I am concerned that the proposed Forstmann/Telmex deal may not be the best for XO Communications and for its stockholders. Already there are many lawsuits against XO Communications because of alleged mishandeling of company financial information by its' officers. This should tie-up company resources for some time to come. Also, I am concerned for the future of the company with Carlos Slim of Telmex in control. A few years back he bought the US corporation CompUSA and, because of illegal practices involved in the purchase, a US court awarded a Dallas, Texas firm a judgement of more than $400 million dollars. I understand that XO Communications has contracts with the US Government for communications services. I think that XO Communications, its' shareholders, its creditors, and its' future customers will be better served if a US Bankruptcy Court determines its' fate.
